Lunch & Learn
A Brown Bag Research Series

Assessing the impact of research
How do you gauge the impact of your research? What are the tools that funding agencies use to evaluate your research? In this first seminar, you will be introduced to a controversial topic, measuring research impact. Workshop objectives:
- Metrics of measuring research impact including IF, SNIP, h-index and altmetrics
- Limitations of these metrics
- Strategies to increase research impact

Developing expert search skills
How can you make your search both comprehensive and efficient? How can you stay current with the research in your area? You will learn how to develop search strategies for maximum results.
- Understand how a database is organized
- Use Scopus to apply bibliometrics in search
- Learn how to get the most out of Google Scholar

Organizing references with a citation manager
To organize/manage citations it is essential to use a citation manager. This workshop introduces select citation managers and compares their strengths and weaknesses:
- Refworks
- EndNote
- Mendeley
- Zotero

About
The Office of Research Development, in collaboration with the Louis Stokes Health Sciences Library, is launching a lunch seminar series to improve project management skills for research paper writing. The seminars are intended for faculty, research staff, and graduate students.

WHERE?
All seminars will take place at the Louis Stokes Health Sciences Library
Room 202 (Faculty Reading Room).
